MUCEDOKEHL
An Important Homeopathic “Door Opener“ for the Treatment of Chronic Diseases

The Use of Mucor Mucedo in Homeopathy

Mucor mucedo - the substance of MUCEDOKEHL - was introduced in homoeopathy in 1955 by the French physician Pommier de Santi.

He diagnosed the general symptoms as neurovegetative dystonia, weakness, weightloss, anaemia, decalcification in conjunction with phosphaturia and dryness of hair and nails. The symptoms increase in spring and fall and improve after a longer stay at the seaside (O. A. Julian: „Treatise on Dynamised Micro-Immunotherapy“, 2nd edition, B. Jain Publishers (P) Ltd., New Delhi, 1985; H. Körner: „Therapeutische Bereicherung durch neues Arzneimittel“ (Therapeutic Gain Through New Medicament), SANUM-Post No. 5, 1988, pgs. 2-3).

Regarding the individual physiological systems MUCEDOKEHL is applicable with the following indications (please also note the results of an application study by R. Heidl: „MUCEDOKEHL – ein Arzneimittel mit großer Wirkungsbreite“ (MUCEDOKEHL – Medicament with Wide Application Range) SANUM-Post No. 52, 2000, pgs. 4-8):

- Thyroid dysfunction;
- Ears: Chronic otitis;
- Respiratory tract: Chronic diseases of the respiratory tract (exudative asthma, dyspnea, expectoration); rhinitis, chronic sinusitis, adenoid growth in the nose;
- Digestive system: Tonsillar hypertrophia, phlegmonous tonsillitis, lymphadenosis during teething, infant enteritis, arthritis with dental focus;
- Urogenital tract: Premenstrual problems like PMS;
- Note especially the MUCEDOKEHL-therapy of neuro-vegetative dystonia in conjunction with anxiety.

In short the primary effect of the medicament can be attributed to the regulation of the intestines and of the annexing organs; the intestines also house the enteric nervous system, the central emotional regulatory organ of the human being (also note the article on the enteric nervous system in SANUM Post No. 57, 2001, pgs. 2–4).

The enteric nervous system (ENS) and the central nervous system (CNS) housed in the cranium both have the same embryological origin and both contain a large number of interneurons, a barrier against external influences, as well as the same neurotransmitters and neuropeptides.

Several limbic and paralimbic nuclei of the brain, modulating the regular function of the digestive system, also coordinate emotional as well as physiological anxiety processes. A dysregulation of these nuclei seems to be playing an outstanding role in the development of anxiety disorders. Furthermore many parts of the brain participating in the anxiety circuit receive a vast input from the intestines.

The limbic system thus plays a central role in the development and treatment of disorders. According to J. Schleimer („Homöopathie und Psychotherapie“ (Homoeopathy and Psychotherapy), Naturheilpraxis 7, 2002, pgs. 964–969), however, changes first appear in the organs originating from the endoderm like i.e. the intestines, before occurring in the mesodermal and finally the ectodermal organs. This process is referred to as „inaffinimentation“ and has a central role in the development of chronic psychiatric disorders.

MUCEDOKEHL as Homoeopathic Door Opener in the Therapy of Chronic Diseases.

While acute diseases are usually easily treated successfully, the therapy of chronic diseases under modern conditions, however, proves to be increasingly difficult. This is connected to the increasing affection of higher levels of the human existence, like the emotional, mental or spiritual levels, in pathogenesis, due to the long-term suppression of diseases on the material and vital-energetic levels as well as the extreme increase of fears in modern society. The result is the ever more frequent development of blocks on the emotional as well as the other two levels.

Blocks of the vital-energetic level result in cell respiration disorder (redox rigidity) in conjunction with hyperacidity of the connective tissue, leading to energy congestion of the blood and energy deficiency of the tissue.

These conditions of milieu are known as the so-called „tubercular milieu“ which nowadays is one of the main causes for the development of chronic diseases. This milieu disposes the congested blood towards the development of chronic virus infections and towards the increase of cell wall deficient forms of bacteria, while the secondary energy deficiency disposes the tissue towards an increase of fungi and yeasts.

It is thus hardly surprising that the number of patients with personality disorders and mycoses has risen sharply in general practices over recent years. Suppressing therapies are the conventional courses of treatment chosen for these patients, which in turn could simply aggravate the problem.

The above-mentioned and much changed framework of modern therapy has only been developed in the recent past. The modern SANUM therapy of chronic diseases therefore must adapt to these changed conditions. Not only is the therapeutic incorporation of the higher human levels of existence of importance, the energy balance of the body must be increasingly regulated.

MUCEDOKEHL has long been a proven preparation for the regulation of emotional problems. In light of the new conditions, however, it has a much higher rating as it often works as a homoeopathic “door opener”, thus providing a gateway for naturopathic therapy.

Another proven remedy for the treatment of chronic diseases is CHRYSOCOR (see also „Application of Placenta Extracts in the Treatment of Tumor Patients“, SANUM Post No. 60). This medicament regulates cell respiration and relates strongly to the bladder/kidney system. In Traditional Chinese Medicine (TCM) the kidneys are closely connected with the development of fears. It is thus not only possible to stimulate cell respiration with CHRYSOCOR, but also to support the regulation of mental problems. Please note that the medicament should only be used in small dosages for the treatment of blocks of the kidney-bladder-meridian, due to hysterectomy for example.

Suggestion for a very effective fundamental therapy of chronic diseases:

1. CHRYSOCOR + CITROKEHL: Mixed injection i.m., once a week

2. First two weeks: EXMYKEHL 3X suppositories, at night, Monday to Friday, with 2x1 tablet FORTAKEHL 5X on Saturday and Sunday

3. Subsequent months: Monday to Friday: 10 drops SANKOMBI 5X in the morning, 10 drops MUCEDOKEHL 5X at night, with 2x1 tablet FORTAKEHL 5X on Saturday and Sunday

4. Starting with the second week; SANUKEHL Myc 6X and SANUKEHL PSEU 6X respectively every other day, 1x4 drops orally and 1x4 drops as external application at night before going to sleep.

5. Starting with the third week: 1 capsule UTILIN „S“ (4X or 6X according to the patients’ constitution) 1 every fortnight

6. Regulation of the acid-base balance with ALKALAN and SANUVIS.

If the main problem happens to be an anxiety disorder SANUKEHL Coli is to be used instead of SANUKEHL Pseu, since this preparation is strongly connected with both the intestines and the bladder/kidney system. Before starting the therapy, meridian blocks should be dissolved as far as possible.
